Brazil Will Send Team to Antwerp

TO JANEIRO, Feb. 24.—The Brazilian Sports Confederation and the Olympic Committee have resolved to send a delegation of sixty athletes to the Olympic games at Antwerp next summer. They have opened a credit of $50,000, holding that the sports will benefit Brazil greatly. The Government will contribute to the fund and transport the athletes on one of the nation's steamers.

The Brazilian team will participate in water polo and football, in both of which sports Brazilians are the champions of South America, swimming, rowing, tennis, hockey, boxing, wrestling, cycling and gymnastics.

Yacht Races With England Proposed

Indian Harbor Y. C. Makes Offer Relating to Class R Sloops.

International yacht racing within another year will not be confined to the historic America Cup event if an invitation sent to Great Britain by the Indian Harbor Yacht Club of Greenwich, Conn., is received with favor.

According to an announcement made yesterday by William Hamlin Childs, who has been Commodore of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club for three years, the club has been made to British yachting officials for a series of annual races between comparatively small craft of about twenty foot water line length—the Class R sloop, to be exact—with the request that the matter be taken under consideration at the earliest possible date.

It has been recommended that the first of these international races be held here over the America Cup Yacht Club course in 1921, as arrangements could hardly be completed, rules agreed upon and yachts constructed in time to permit of the initial series of races.

The Indian Harbor Yacht Club is largely to be left open for consideration and adoption after the British yachtsmen have expressed their willingness to inaugurate the proposed international races.

The Indian Harbor Yacht Club has proposed:

That the races be held annually and alternately in America and England; that new cups be raced for each year; that the trophy be known as the Roosevelt Trophy and the English cup the Prince of Wales Trophy; that races in America be held under American rules of competition and measurement, and those in England under English rules.

In the past the great obstacle that has been in the way of any attempt at an international series of small class yacht races has been the difference in rules. This difficulty apparently has been circumvented by the Indian Harbor Yacht Club's suggestion that the countries race alternately under American and English rules. When America's turn comes, the English rules will be used and when England's turn comes, the American rules will be used.

The annual series of races will be declared open to other countries, but for the present the Indian Harbor Yacht Club has only Great Britain in mind.

All owners of Class R yachts in this country will be eligible to participate in the international series. If the entry exceeds a certain number, elimination trials will have to be held. The Indian Harbor Yacht Club course, the permit to qualify may be three, perhaps more, but not less.

Indian Harbor Yacht Club considers itself particularly well equipped to handle the international races on this side. It boasts one of the finest courses on Long Island Sound and a large wealthy membership that includes some of the most efficient and successful yachtsmen in the world.

Admission to the races will be free. The Indian Harbor Yacht Club has a new clubhouse, now being constructed to take the place of the one destroyed by fire last fall, with every comfort known to the finest of the yacht clubs. It will be difficult to improve on the club's accommodations for visiting yachtsmen.

High Lights and Shadows in All Spheres of Sport

By Daniel.

Copyright, 1920, by The Sun-Herald Corporation.

THERE may have been room for doubt as to whether Johnny Kilbane or Benny Valger won the eight round bout in Newark on Wednesday night. But there was every reason for perfect unanimity on one development of the contest and that was the decision that neither boxer was able to uphold the highest traditions of technique of the featherweight class. Kilbane was a sad champion of the world. He was a shakier power and combativeness and proved anything but clever. As for Valger, he may have weakened himself by his attempt to make 124 pounds at 3 o'clock, but he was a wonderful disappointment for those who came in the expectation of seeing a rushing, clever and fairly hard hitting fighter. As we sat there watching this pair of misfit featherweights try to hit each other and succeeding only in cutting and shoving each other about the ring, we allowed our memory to roam back to a night in 1909, in this city, when Al Attell and Jim Driscoll went ten rounds in an attempt to decide which was the world's champion. There was no decision, of course, but Driscoll won on points. There was ten times as much cleverness and real class displayed in that contest as there was in the Kilbane-Valger affair. As for the present title holder or Valger, he is a shakier to think of the slaughter!

On the side of Kilbane there is this to be said, he has been champion for eight years and realizes that he is through, and is using his cunningness as a match maker to stave off the inevitable. For Valger there is no excuse. He cannot be at his best as a featherweight, and should cease trying to remain in that class, for the longer he attempts to make 125 pounds the longer is he going to delay the possibility of his developing a punch and ruggedness.

As a real sporting proposition the bout was a rank failure. In the first place Kilbane, as champion, demanded that Valger make 124 pounds at 3 o'clock, while the title holder elected to enter the ring at catchweights. This was a bad start. To make matters worse, Valger was three-quarters of a pound overweight, and Kilbane declined to pass up the weight forfeit of $1,000. This action naturally made Kilbane as popular with the crowd as a weasel in a henhouse. Professional boxing is all business with the boxers, but when a champion of the world asks a rival to make weight for an eight round bout and comes into the ring at any old poundage he desires, and then collects a forfeit for less than a pound overweight, the inference is that somebody is a poor sportsman. Incidentally, there is something much stronger than an inference that such conditions are all wrong. In closing we want to know how official Kilbane's announced weight of 125½ pounds really was. Was it as official as Leonard's 135½ against Dundee in Jersey City some days ago?

College Golfers Play Nassau

Select June 22 to 26 for Their Annual Championship Tourney.

By KERN N. PETRIE.

While it did not appear to relish the idea of staging the national amateur title tournament this year, the Nassau Country Club is not altogether averse to having a championship held over its course of smaller volume.

The U. S. A. title event by its appearances. That, at least, is the logical answer to the query as to why, with Piping Rock it should turn down the better attraction of the title season and almost immediately sanction the holding of the Intercollegiate Golf Association's annual title tournament over the links at Glen Cove.

Dates for the intercollegiate have been selected, and according to this, the attraction will be decided from June 22 to 26, according to present forecasts, one of the best fields that ever competed for the honors. A. L. Walker, Jr., of Richmond County Country Club, who captains the Columbia team, is the secretary as well as the title holder of the association, and with such a leader in interest in the annual title meet in any danger of being allowed to lag.

Walker will defend, of course, but even with his magnificent game and wide reputation it by no means follows that he is to have a second year of the title, for since last year many capable lads have been added to the big college aggregations, and in addition there are still a number of capable exponents left over from last season who will make his job of defending anything but a sinecure.

Herbert E. Calves of the University of Pennsylvania, this year is the president of the Intercollegiate Golf Association, and the treasurer is William P. Black of Williams. The membership now includes Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Williams, Cornell, Dartmouth, Illinois, and the University of Michigan.

The inclusion of the latter brings into the competition the Atlanta group of players headed by Bobby Jones, and that is about all that it is necessary to say to convey the impression that the championship is to be a most interesting and exciting one.

At the Nassau Country Club, the championship is to be held on the links of the club, which is situated at Mountain Station, N. J., moved its home to larger quarters and made plans for the continuation of tennis and other sports on the links of the club, and the fact of the Middle States event, around which so much tennis history is devoted to New Jersey.

Tennis Club will undoubtedly apply for and be awarded some other tournament to take the place of the Middle States championship.

Holland Challenges.

Seeks Davis Lawn Tennis Cup Held by Australia.

London, Feb. 24.—Holland has entered a challenge for the Davis lawn tennis cup, now held by Australia. It was announced to-day by the Lawn Tennis Association.

The names of the prospective players are not yet available in London, but it is believed that two well-known Dutch players, Van Lennep and Schreier, are almost sure to be included in the team if the challenge is accepted.

288 Entries in Dog Show to-Day

Sporting Spaniels Will Be Staged in Exhibition at the Waldorf-Astoria.

By FRANK F. DOLE.

"Will an Irish water spaniel top the breed at the sporting spaniel show to-day at the Waldorf-Astoria?" Emphatically, I may not, although the water dog to gain the distinction of the being the best spaniel bled at the Boston show this week, Howard Willet's Gledy Farm Fox, but I believe that the Irish water spaniel, if a cocker spaniel is to be beaten for that special, as William L. Lowe deemed the wisest course to pursue in the Boston Dog Club show, I venture to predict that C. F. Nelson, who is to be the sole judge, will prefer a good Clumber rather than an Irish water spaniel.

George Greer, president of the American Spaniel Club, has some grand specimens of the old English gun spaniel, and George R. Preston always has one or two in use at Tuxedo for parades and quail shooting. When brought in at those entered for to-day's exhibition will be the Clumber spaniel is one of the most handsome of dogs.

Gledy Farm Fox, the Irish water spaniel, I have seen dozens of times in service in the West, where they are very popular, and in duck shooting about Chesapeake Bay, but I believe that the Irish water spaniel is to be the sole judge, will prefer a good Clumber rather than an Irish water spaniel.

While there are hundreds of dollars in cash offered and dozens of cups for open competition, the American Spaniel Club is not so much interested in the members. To win one is to gain a blue ribbon of dogdom. They may only be put in competition, under the constitution of the club, when one of the members is to be elected to the office of president. This is to be done in the future. This official list is kept on file for the information of show superintendents who may wish to refer to the American Spaniel Club's list.

At this time, in addition to C. F. Nelson, the list is made up of George Greer, William P. Lowe, Rev. T. Moore Smith, Mrs. H. H. Plake, J. Mary Willet, Judge Townsend, Scudder, James M. Phillips, E. D. Munn, James M. Phillips, Jr., Dr. H. B. Kohler, Dr. Charles R. J. Robinson and Dr. C. B. Gilmore.

With one or two additions, such as W. T. G. O. B. Hark and A. Clinton Whittington, the list would include men who own between them eighty-five per cent of the sporting spaniels in the United States. All these dogs are to be made to-day's Waldorf-Astoria show a success.

Old Guard Honors

WALTER J. TRAVIS

Garden City Golfer Made Honorary President of Society for Life.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24.—A phase of last night's annual dinner of the Old Guard Society of Palm Beach golfers was the genuine affection displayed for Walter J. Travis by more than one hundred prominent golfers attending from all parts of the country. Travis had resigned as president on account of ill health. Col. J. Ernest Smith, William Country Club, who replaced him, offered a resolution, passed unanimously with cheers, making Mr. Travis "honorary president of the society for life." The resolution asserted "that by his life and his golf he upheld the true ideals of the game and had been the greatest exponent of the actual play" and that the special office be created "in expression of his services to the game and his place in the history of the high esteem in which we hold him as a man, a friend and as a golf's Grand Old Man."

Previous to the dinner Travis had made the low gross score of 55 in a round of 18 holes, which was a record for the Country Club course and was awarded a silver knife. Charles Klotz, a writer, was low net with 75, setting a new record and the honor of having his name on the list of winners of the President's Cup, possession of which was awarded for one year.

Charles E. Brackett, Minneapolis; Harry H. Brackleton, and E. J. Doughty, Boston, tied for low net nine holes, Hoy winning the draw. Myron L. Keith, Brooklyn, won low net for second nine with a 35. For the best selected nine 18, Ross, Philadelphia, and Albert M. Hays, Chicago, tied at 50, the latter winning the draw.

Sectional Tryout Here.

There has been some discussion as to whether a sectional tryout should be held in the East, those of a pessimistic turn being of the opinion that if other sections should be forced into districts the same rule should apply here. However, that is only a side issue and is regarded in the light of a technicality, and will doubtless be settled by the American Olympic Committee at the proper moment.

Although no exact date has yet been set for the big meet, there has been a sort of tentative agreement that it will be the first week in July—that is, on Saturday, July 3. Were it possible the fixture would be arranged for the first of the month, but this year that day falls on a Sunday.

After its organization the American committee harbored the idea that it would be better to hold the tryouts about the middle of July, but there was a slight hitch over this, as it would give the successful athletes little or no time to prepare for the trip abroad. To make the journey more comfortable, the committee has decided to hold the tryouts on Saturday, July 3. The tryouts will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, which will be asked to ship another point winning aggregation to Belgium.

Only Four Men to Score.

The announcement by the Belgian Olympic committee that only four men will be scored in every event places the United States at a big disadvantage. When it comes to the grand total, the entire list of events, but the Belgians have a good excuse to fall back on in pointing out that the rules of the International Athletic Federation are explicit on that point. In some of the events it will be necessary to have a number of competitors as the sprinters, hurdles and heavyweights, where Uncle Sam is expected to have as many as six men ahead of all other countries, there will be a great many points to be scored on the basis of 7 for first, 5 for second, 4 for third, 3 for fourth, 2 for fifth and 1 for sixth. It will be the first trial of the new system, and no doubt will be watched with great interest. In the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm three men were scored in all the track and field events.

The query often has been put to the American Olympic committee as to whether the track and field section of the program. No definite answer can be offered just yet, nor will there be until after the tryouts.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that those with a chance to score will be taken. This time it will cost $1,000 for each man, and a broad hint already has been thrown out that no foreigners hopes will be invited to the American team when it leaves here.

In 1912 the Finland was chartered, and almost every one was taken along, and the result was that a lot of men were taken who were not good enough to win, and the expense of the trip was a heavy burden at home. It is understood that if an athlete wants to pay his own way and if he satisfies the American committee that he has a chance to make a good showing, his case will receive every consideration.

Will Be a New Texas Which Will Greet the Giants

Tomorrow morning, at the unearily hour of half past eight, the Giants will leave this city for San Antonio, Tex., their training camp. After twenty days in the name city of St. Anthony and the site of the famous Alamo, the club will hit the road and begin a long series of one day stands with a different Texas it is from the sedate old State which the Giants found it on their last visit, when they trained in Marlin in the spring of 1918! To-day the trail from Fort Worth, Dallas and Wichita Falls is a trail of oozy, messy oil. Since last spring Texas has been in the throes of this wild boom which has made millions over night and reproduced the days of the gold rush in the Klondike and California.

Easy come, easy go—the clubs are going to see if they cannot establish new attendance records for the Lone Star State and ease some of that cash away from the diggers after oil. The Giants and the Red Sox should prove a great attraction not only in Texas but in the other eleven States which they are to go through before they hit New York. When the States which they are to go through before they hit New York. When the States which they are to go through before they hit New York. When the States which they are to go through before they hit New York.

Fixtures Are Piling Up.

While metropolitan golfers will welcome the college stars to their midst the dumping of the championship into the hands of a single player is not likely to cause any great outburst of rejoicing in the high places where the schedule makers are wrestling with the serious task of devising a list of serious and hard work in an endeavor so to sort out the tangle of dates and fixtures that there will be no serious overlaps or conflicts. As the present season is a little shorter than the one selected by the collegians will conflict with several prominent tournaments, among them the women's metropolitan and the Connecticut State.

It is not likely that the college stars will be able to play in the metropolitan and the Connecticut State. It is not likely that the college stars will be able to play in the metropolitan and the Connecticut State. It is not likely that the college stars will be able to play in the metropolitan and the Connecticut State.

Orange Will Lose Old Tennis Fixture

Redistricting of Sections Will Shift Middle States Championship Elsewhere.

One of the oldest and most important tennis fixtures in the East, the Middle States championship, is to be moved from Orange Lawn Tennis Club, where it has been held annually. As a result of the redistricting of the tennis sections by the national association last week Orange Lawn Tennis Club is now within the New York section, being within the thirty-five mile radius of City Hall, and no longer in the Middle States section, which under the revised arrangement includes Pennsylvania, Delaware and the section of New Jersey not taken in by the New York division.

To hold a Middle States championship at a club that is no longer in that section is a position of no great importance, and therefore certain to move. Chances are that Philadelphia, which is the tennis center of the new Middle States division, will take over the custody of the old title tournament.

Over a period of nearly thirty years the Middle States tennis fixture has attracted practically every racket wielder that held the national championship. This season's champion, William P. Black of Williams, will undoubtedly apply for and be awarded some other tournament to take the place of the Middle States championship.

Columbia Loses Quigley.

Blue and White Gridiron and Baseball Star Quits College.

According to a report in athletic circles yesterday afternoon, Eddie Quigley has played his last game in college sport. Quigley, who was Columbia's star quarterback until he was injured early last season, failed to return to college and is reported to have accepted a position as athletic director with a business firm. If this is true, and it seems very likely, he will be classed as a professional and consequently will be ineligible to compete in any college games.

Quigley attended Holy Cross for two years before the war and was a star on both the football and baseball teams. He played on Cupid's team in 1917 and 1918, and earned additional fame by the quality of his game.

He easily gained a position on the blue and white eleven and was calculated to play on both the basketball and baseball teams after the close of the gridiron season.

Among the ranks of the Bohos were all classes of athletes, such as gymnasts, tumblers, and other longshore performers and craftsmen. They all did well on the firing line, and it was only natural that their countrymen should honor their military service. A number of the Bohos were among the number to pay tribute to the departed hero.

Basketball Team From Capital Wins by 46-31.

Georgetown University's basketball team last night defeated the Fordham team in a local college game. The Blue and Gray held the upper hand throughout the contest and had a seven point advantage at the close of the opening period, at 26 to 19. The team work of the Maroon was poor.

The Maroon in the fifth round, but with no competitor in the race, William Buxton and William Duryea succeeded in righting the boat and finished in 51 minutes 22 seconds.

Thomas Irving Brown's Star When, the other defender, unable to hold the ice, and before his second round, withdrew. Daisy withdrew the imp on the second round.
